

Contributors to this issue

Victor Beecher, Director, Police Training, NUCPS. A 26-year veteran of the Milwaukee PD, Beecher is a graduate of SPSC Class #255. He rose through patrol and investigative ranks and retired in 2016 as a captain. In addition to his responsibilities for all police operations at District Four, Beecher implemented data-driven, community-engaged, proactive strategies to reduce crime, fear, and disorder.

Gretchen Dolan, Washington State Patrol, SPSC #422. Dolan is a 2017 graduate of NUCPS School of Staff and Command's Class #422, which met in Burien, WA. Her staff study was selected for publication in this issue and published with her permission.

Don Ostermeyer, Adjunct Instructor. Ostermeyer possesses 45 years of law enforcement experience, including 20 with the Orlando (FL) Police Department, and has extensive experience in criminal investigations and forensics, areas in which he is a nationally recognized expert. He was instrumental in the development of the IAI's certification process and is a certified Senior Crime Scene Analyst and Bloodstain Pattern Analyst. He is an instructor for NUCPS forensic courses and is the director/consultant of Doje's Forensic Supplies, Inc.

Richard Peterson, Adjunct Instructor. Peterson is a retired law enforcement professional with more than 30 years of experience. He worked in the Washington County (MN) Sheriff's Office for 25 years, rising to senior sergeant, then served as a detective for the State of Minnesota's Department of Commerce. He teaches "Internal Conflict within the Police Organization" and "Officer Wellness" for the NUCPS School of Police Staff & Command. Peterson served as the president of his own SPSC Class #110.

Robert K. Seyfried, PE, PTOE, Adjunct Instructor. Seyfried is a former transportation engineering program director at NUCPS and continues to work with the center as an adjunct instructor. He is the author of multiple articles and publications on traffic and transportation engineering.

Caroline Paulison Andrew, Editor, The Key / NUCPS Alumni Relations. Andrew is editor, staff writer, and designer for The Key and handles NUCPS Alumni Relations. She possesses more than 25 years of communications expertise, including significant in-house and contract experience in publishing, non-profit and education organizations, and law firms. She earned her BA from Northwestern University and her MBA from Loyola University Chicago.

.....
Thank you to this issue's contributors.

We welcome new authors! If you would like to contribute an article to The Key — or wish to see an article on a specific topic — please contact Caroline Paulison Andrew, editor, at nucps-alumni@northwestern.edu.

The Key, Issue 7: Sept/Oct 2018. nucps.northwestern.edu. David Bradford/executive director. Caroline Paulison Andrew/editor. The Key is a bimonthly publication of Northwestern University Center for Public Safety, 1801 Maple Ave., Evanston, IL 60201. Copyright © 2018, by Northwestern University Center for Public Safety. Reproduction of any part of this journal without express written permission is strictly prohibited.

Articles are contributed by practitioners in law enforcement, public safety, and related fields. No word rate is paid. No other reimbursement is provided. Contributors' opinions and statements are the authors' own opinions and do not reflect that of Northwestern University Center for Public Safety or Northwestern University. Advertising is not accepted.

To change the email address associated with your subscription, please email nucps-alumni@northwestern.edu. Allow 5 business days for processing.