Osher Lifelong Learning Institute

MISSION STATEMENT
The mission of the Osher Lifelong Learning Institute (OLLI) is to enable the continuation of learning and intellectual pursuit for a community of mature adults. As a special program of Northwestern University's School of Professional Studies, OLLI offers a comprehensive curriculum of peer-led discussion groups covering topics in areas such as literature, history, politics, science, philosophy, current affairs, and the arts. OLLI welcomes diversity in its membership, and has no academic prerequisites or age restrictions.
FROM THE OLLI DIRECTOR,
KARI FAGIN

What will coordinators think of next? This is the question I ask myself each term, and each term I am surprised and impressed all over again. Another list of creative, interesting, and stimulating study groups are coming to OLLI this summer, thanks to our outstanding and imaginative coordinators. If it’s literature you like, we have that. If you’re a history buff, we have that too. If science and technology pique your interest, look no further. Creative arts, civic engagement, contemporary issues, social sciences, writing — we have it all.

OLLI is here for you to explore a familiar topic area or discover a new area of interest. We look forward to your active engagement in our highly participatory, small group discussions for which Northwestern OLLI is known.

Have a wonderful summer OLLI experience!

Joy in Learning and Community,
Kari
Kari Fagin, Director of Northwestern OLLI

OLLI is all virtual this summer session. Join our study groups from anywhere you have an Internet connection! The only equipment needed is a computer or tablet with a camera (either built into the device or added separately), and an Internet connection. Our virtual classrooms will be held via Zoom and all study groups will follow our regular peer-led, highly interactive, social, and fun approach to learning. Technology training will be provided to new OLLI members as well as current members who want a bit more help — all with the goal of making you feel comfortable with this virtual environment.

Benefits of OLLI Anywhere
While we prefer to be on campus and we will return to in-person experiences when it’s safe to do so, members have noted many unexpected benefits of our virtual learning experience:

• the ability to hear and see one another better via Zoom,
• thoughtful articulation and organized dialogue through the use of Zoom features like chat and hand raising,
• convenience and time savings as a result of not having to commute to a physical classroom,
• more personal connections by seeing into one another’s homes and meeting one another’s pets or spouses,
• greater accessibility for those with physical limitations or those caring for a loved one in their home,
• greater access to those who are temporarily or permanently located outside of Chicago,
• larger social circles, richer conversations, greater collaboration, and new friendships as a result of bringing together members from both NU OLLI campuses, and
• the very best speakers from all over the country who are able to present to us virtually.

In Summary

All OLLI summer study groups will be conducted virtually via Canvas. Every member will use their Northwestern NetID and password to access Canvas. Within Canvas, members will use the provided Zoom links to enter their virtual classroom. Some study groups will also use Canvas to post additional resources.

Zoom Etiquette, Tips, and Tricks

- Use the video option when possible.
  We want to see your smiling face!

- Stage your video area.
  Keep in mind that people see you as well as whatever is behind you! Find a quiet area that has minimal background noise and movement. Zoom's virtual background feature is an easy way to eliminate background distractions.

- More light is better.
  Video quality is dramatically improved with more lighting. Make sure the light is in front of you, not behind you, so that you don't become a silhouette. Avoid backlight from bright windows as well.

- Position your device so you look into the camera.
  Looking into the camera (rather than at yourself) gives the appearance of eye contact. Position your camera to be at eye level or above. Place books or a box under your device to make it higher.

- Speak clearly into the microphone.
  Speak clearly into the microphone or consider using a headset so you can hear and be heard better.

- Stay on mute if you're not talking.
  Background noise can be distracting. To help keep it to a minimum, make sure you mute your microphone when you are not speaking.

- Don't eat during the meeting.
  Others can be distracted by watching you eat or listening to you chew. Hold off if you can, or if not, temporarily turn off your video and audio.

- Focus on the meeting.
  Remember that you are on camera — avoid doing other tasks, checking emails, looking at your phone, etc.

- Use the Chat.
  If you have a quick or simple comment, placing it in the Chat is an easy way to contribute without interrupting the flow of the discussion.

OLLI ANYWHERE: SUMMER SESSION • BEGINS TUESDAY, JULY 6, 2021

STUDY GROUP DESCRIPTIONS

NORTHWESTERN OLLI IS A UNIQUELY ENGAGING PEER LEARNING EXPERIENCE.

As a result, all members are expected to actively participate in weekly study group discussions. In our study groups, members share knowledge with other members while learning from them at the same time.

In this community, we also strongly recommend every member to lead at least one discussion each semester. We find that discussion leaders learn the most during the week(s) they lead the discussion.

ICON KEY

High level of discussion

Extensive use of Canvas

Medium level of discussion

Access to Netflix or other streaming service required

Reading: At least 40 or more pages per week

Kindle edition of text available

Reading: Roughly 20-40 pages per week

Transportation required

Reading: Less than 20 pages per week

MONDAY

BEGINs JULY 12, 2021

The New Yorker

Coordinators: Susan Gaud, Hillis Howie
Monday, 9:45–11:45 a.m.

This study group is for long time fans of The New Yorker as well as newcomers. During each session we will examine the contents of the current issue and then explore a previously assigned article in depth. A volunteer discussion leader who has chosen the article will lead the discussion. Conversations will be lively. Everyone is expected to lead a discussion once a semester. Participants will be encouraged to become “watchers” who briefly discuss the current issue, from the cover to cartoons and everything in between. A print or digital subscription of The New Yorker magazine is required.
NEW The Films of John Huston
Coordinators: Jerry Salzberg, Ray Rusnak
Monday, 9:45–11:45 a.m.

As a renowned director, screenwriter, and actor John Huston's impact on film cannot be overstated. This study group will delve into the script preparation, camera work, music, and Huston's life behind and off the screen. The films to be viewed are The Treasure of the Sierra Madre, The Asphalt Jungle, Key Largo, and Fat City. Participants will view each film in advance. The study group will include an introduction prepared by a member, followed by group discussion. All films are available on Amazon Prime and YouTube.

NEW Exploring Graceland Cemetery
Coordinators: Bob Myers, Angela D'Aversa, Debra Watkins, Evelyn Shaavel, Philip Steptoe, Jane Woolley
Monday, 9:45–11:45 a.m.

This group will study the history of Chicago through three walks in Graceland Cemetery — one of Chicago's crown jewels designed by visionary landscape architects, many of whom are also buried there. Among its Victorian gardens we will find some of Chicago's most noted and influential citizens such as: Marshall Field, Louis Sullivan, Ernie Banks, and many others. The first week, we will share the history of Graceland via a Zoom session. Then, in the following three weeks, we will explore the 120-acre cemetery grounds. For the cemetery walks, we will divide into subgroups of ten members or less, with a co-coordinator assigned to each subgroup. Each member of this study group will be expected to lead a discussion of two gravesites scheduled on each of the three cemetery walks. Each walk will require approximately one mile of walking for each of the three cemetery visits. Study group members must provide their own transportation. Recommended Reading: A Walk Through Graceland Cemetery, Barbara Lanctot (Chicago Architecture Foundation, 1977).

NEW Work: From Rocks to Robots
Coordinators: Susan Longo, Ted Gault
Monday, 9:45–11:45 a.m.

We are in the midst of a fourth industrial revolution created by new digital, biological, and physical technologies. Ever more, tasks in our factories, businesses, and homes will be undertaken by cyber physical systems animated by machine-learning algorithms. For some, these developments portend an era of robotic convenience. But for many they are faced with the angst of: what will happen to my job; how will I find a human to help me; what do I do with my leisure time; how do I find personal purpose, worth, and recognition in a digital world? The global economy has laid bare two starkly different assumptions about how work drives our daily lives: the market economy that converts input to outputs, and the social market of relationships and cooperation. Instead of looking at work in economic terms of scarcity and productivity, this course will investigate the anthropology, sociology, and psychology of work and leisure. We will cover excerpts from the book, Work: A Deep History from the Stone Age to the Age of Robots (Penguin Press, 2021), to rethink our assumptions about how we spend our time and value propositions such as success and position power.
NEW Mank: The Movie, The Man...And Rosebud
Coordinators: Dorothy Balabanos, Pamela Radke
Monday, 1:15–3:15 p.m.

The Oscar-winning 2021 movie Mank explores Herman J. Mankiewicz’s writing of the first draft of the screenplay American, which (with the supposed help of 24-year-old wunderkind Orson Welles) became the 1941 iconic movie Citizen Kane. We will watch both movies and not only dive into the classic Hollywood dramas of the 1930s and 40s, but also the sensational political corruption of the times. We will explore the muckraking yellow journalistic methods of William Randolph Hearst which led to his media empire of the 1920s–40s. We will also discuss how the 1934 California gubernatorial campaign of novelist Upton Sinclair was purposely sabotaged by Hearst and MGM producer Irving Thalberg. We will be bewitched by the dazzling Marion Davies, a star in her own right and often the most interesting person in the room, speaking truth to power with a raw frankness learned on the streets of her native Brooklyn. Join us for a lively discussion as we compare and contrast Mank and Citizen Kane — and discover the people who helped shape the Golden Age of Hollywood, American politics, and modern journalism.

NEW Strongmen — From Mussolini to Trump
Coordinator: James Smith, Mary Stewart
Monday, 1:15–3:15 p.m.

For the last century, authoritarian rulers have left their imprint on the politics of their nations and the world. Some, like Mussolini and Hitler, came to power as the head of right-wing ideological movements. Others, like Chile’s Pinochet and Libya’s Gaddafi, seized power in coups. More recently, strongmen like Putin and Trump have sought power through elections, though the elections have often been tainted by internal fraud or outside tampering. In Strongmen: Mussolini to the Present, Ruth Ben-Ghiat, Professor of History and Italian Studies at New York University, has created a remarkable portrait of a dangerous class of would-be dictators. She describes their varying routes to power, and provides a detailed analysis of the techniques they use (appeals to nationalism, a virile image, truth-defying propaganda, corruption, and violence) to stay in power. Finally, she gives a roadmap for resistors, identifying how these leaders lose power. The parallelisms, conscious and otherwise, between historical authoritarians like Mussolini and would-be modern authoritarians like America’s Trump, Hungary’s Orban and Italy’s Berlusconi, are chilling. If you are concerned about the fate of democracy and want to better understand some of its most dangerous enemies, join us for this study group.

NEW The Odyssey
Coordinators: Lynne Carpenter, Bob Relihan
Monday, 1:15–3:15 p.m.

Homer’s epic poem The Odyssey was composed over 2,500 years ago, but its relevance has never been lost. What began as an oral performance was ultimately handwritten on scrolls. The first printed version was produced in Florence in 1488 (still in Greek); its English translation was realized in London in 1616. The Odyssey has been adapted for children and young readers and issued as a comic book. It has inspired many works of art and fiction including James Joyce’s Ulysses, Margaret Atwood’s The Penelopiad, Madeline Miller’s Circe, and the Coen brothers’ film O Brother, Where Art Thou. Join us as we read The Odyssey (Norton Edition, 2020) translated by Emily Wilson. There are 24 “books” in The Odyssey — we will read the first four prior to the first study group.
NEW The Art of Rivalry
Coordinators: Mary Jon Girard, Bridget Stump
Tuesday, 9:45–11:45 a.m.

Our text, The Art of Rivalry: Four Friendships, Betrayals, and Breakthroughs in Modern Art by Sebastian Smee (Random House Trade Paperback, 2016), explores four famous friendships of the modern art era. The New York Times credits the author with, “a tantalizing exploration of the role of passion in art.” Sebastian Smee, a winner of the Pulitzer Prize for art criticism, looks at the relationships between Edgar Degas and Edouard Manet, Pablo Picasso and Henri Matisse, Jackson Pollock and Willem DeKooning, and Lucian Freud and Francis Bacon. Smee shows us how the friendships and rivalries of these famous artists fueled breakthroughs in modern art. The author explores the way an artist often finds his own voice by breaking away from expectations. There is art and drama in Smee's book, enough to carry the study group through 4 weeks of great discussion. Our selected readings will be supplemented with visuals of the artists' works. Whether or not you appreciate the work of these artists, you will find their lives and creative motivation fascinating.

NEW The Nazi Menace
Coordinators: Richard Krantz, Joe Hinkel
Tuesday, 9:45–11:45 a.m.

The "crisis of democracy" that resulted in the cataclysm of WWII is the subject of Benjamin Carter Hett's The Nazi Menace (Henry Holt, 2020). Taking us behind the scenes in Berlin, London, Moscow, and Washington, Hett provides an engaging narrative history of the people and events that shaped this perilous time. We are made witness to Hitler's rise to power and his relentless drive to war, overcoming the resistance of his own Generals and finally getting the war he always wanted. In London, Neville Chamberlain pursues his appeasement policy in order to avoid war — while at the same time preparing Britain to fight a type of war she could win. All the while Winston Churchill was waiting in the wings for the misstep that would allow him to achieve his life's ambition and become Prime Minister. In Moscow, the inscrutable and increasingly paranoid Joseph Stalin maneuvers to preserve the security of the Soviet Union and his own personal power. Finally, in Washington Franklin Roosevelt must come to terms with what is at stake for the world’s democracies and what he must do to preserve them. We are sure you will enjoy Hett's breathing new life into this familiar story. The reading load is approximately 60 pages per week.
NEW Renaissance Imagination 1: Thomas More’s Utopia
Coordinators: James Knapp, Peggy Knapp
Tuesday, 9:45–11:45 a.m.

The chief focus of this study group is Thomas More’s Utopia (written in 1516). Like other major writers and artists of the Renaissance, More was inspired by the classical past and especially by Plato’s Republic. They did not just rediscover the Greeks and Romans, they reinvented them — bringing forth new worlds and new ideas. Fiction writing is at the heart of what they did. More’s Utopia gave us a word that still carries weight and provokes debate in our own time: on the one hand “utopia” denotes an ideal world, but on the other “utopian” often describes an unrealistic idea that could never exist. Thomas More was well aware of utopia’s double meaning. As we read his book we will discuss how such a fiction could have possibly been written during the age of Henry VIII, and how it continues to be read today. Our source will be: Utopia, Thomas More, translated by Clarence H. Miller (Yale University Press, 2014).

Black Mystery Writers II
Coordinators: Michael Goodkind, Martha Bills
Tuesday, 9:45–11:45 a.m.

Join us for the second session of Black Mystery Writers. We will read mysteries written by two women and two men and learn about their protagonists. These stories take place in Africa as well as the “good ole US of A.” We will read the following stories: The Conjure-Man Dies by Rudolph Fisher (re-issued by Collins Crime Club 2021) which takes place in Harlem and features Detective Perry Dart and Dr. John Archer; When Death Comes Stealing by Valerie Wilson Wesley (Putnam Adult 1994) which takes place in Newark, NJ and features ex-cop Tamara Hayle; Children of the Street by Kwei Quartey (Random House 2011), which takes place in Ghana and features Inspector Darko Dawson; and The Plot is Murder by Valerie M. Burns (Kensington Books 2017), which takes place on the Michigan side of Lake Michigan and features mystery book shop owner Samantha Washington. We found the plots interesting and the characters memorable. We believe you will too!

BONUS GROUP: Science and Nature Videos
Coordinators: Ken Schulein, Hillel Furlager, Masako Mary Osako
Tuesday, Noon to 1 p.m.

Keep up with the latest in science and nature by viewing interesting PBS or Nova videos. Watch videos and then discuss them in our virtual Zoom classroom. We will choose videos that represent exotic biodiversity and uncover the deepest mysteries of the natural world. If you register for OLLI’s Summer semester you are eligible to register for the Science & Nature Films Bonus Group at no extra charge.

— Jane L., OLLI Member
Tuesday at the Movies
Coordinators: Michael Pierce, Hillel Furlager, David Buffen
Tuesday, 1:15–3:15 p.m.

Had to cancel travel plans this past year? Pack your bags. This summer’s study group continues our love affair with the motion picture industry: its stars, stories, and evolving production techniques that, when properly and artistically combined, produce movies that we remember forever. We will take you to such far-flung spots as Iran, Argentina, Germany, and Italy for movies recognized by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences as the best in the foreign-language genre. We will view the following movies: A Separation (Asghar Farhadi, 2011); The Secret in Their Eyes (Juan Jose Campanella, 2009); The Counterfeiters (Stefan Ruzowitzky, 2007); and Divorce, Italian Style (Pietro Germi, 1961). These films are gems, providing fascinating storylines and the opportunity to compare and contrast styles against films created in the U.S. We will watch each week’s movie in advance of the study group. Participants must obtain the movies on their own, which can be found online for a minimal fee. Study group members will lead our discussion each week. Meet you at the airport!

NEW Eleanor Roosevelt’s World War II Days
Coordinators: Margot Wallace, Jim Perlow
Tuesday, 1:15–3:15 p.m.

Eleanor Roosevelt saw the world, and then listened. As First Lady, she enjoyed unequaled access to the man on the street and the one in the Oval Office, and the conversations never stopped. Hat on straight and smile lighting the way, she talked to soldiers and generals, local school principals and U.S. senators. At luncheons she chatted with everyone. Her days were marathons and at 5’11” she covered territory effortlessly. Then she wrote about her day. From 1936 to 1962, her column “My Day” appeared in newspapers nationwide. In this 4-week study group, we continue with the chronicles of the woman said to be FDR’s “eyes and ears,” who was 100% her own person. What did she see? What do we see? We will discuss it. Text: George Washington University online archive, free at: https://www2.gwu.edu/~erpapers/myday/browsebyyear.cfm

NEW Reverberations: Ian McEwan’s Atonement
Coordinators: Julie Johnson, Michael Singer
Tuesday, 1:15–3:15 p.m.

Atonement has been widely hailed as an English masterpiece. Opening in 1935 in a country house and continuing through the battles and hardships of World War II, the novel ends in the last years of the twentieth century — when a reader can finally grasp the long-range consequences of a casual early action. Motifs of morality, social class, wartime privation, loyalty, sexual conduct, penance, forgiveness, and the role of chance in human affairs permeate this lovely novel, which won numerous prizes when it came out. Reviewing it in The New Yorker in 2001, John Updike called it “a beautiful and majestic fictional panorama.” Our text will be Atonement by Ian McEwan (Anchor Books, 2003). Please join us for discussion of this literary gem.
NEW BBC Travel
Coordinators: Benjamin, Schwartz, Joyce Salsburg
Tuesday, 1:15–3:15 p.m.

Have you been to Bolivia’s little-known kingdom, heard of a Rwandan milk bar, seen a Hawaiian ‘O’ opu scale the 300m high waterfalls, or know what tree therapy is? Take a virtual trip around the globe while reading travel journalism articles from the BBC’s extensive online travel section. Learn a little bit about current international travel news, history, social science, and nature. Discussion leaders will designate articles for discussion in class from the extensive and free online travel section from the subtopics: Culture and Identity, Food and Hospitality, Discovery, and Adventure and Experience. The weekly subject matter may include readings about: language and people, traditions, customs, geography, technology and innovation, new nature discoveries or lost treasures. The topics are varied and extensive, allowing you plenty of opportunities to find a topic of interest to present as a discussion leader during our four-week journey. Computer access required for online articles.

The New Writing Group
Coordinators: Barbara Rocah, Marcie Marcovitz, Henry Gewurz
Tuesday, 1:15–3:15 p.m.

Everyone tells and listens to stories. It’s the human condition. Join this study group to write stories in whatever form you wish: fiction, poetry, essay, or memoir. This is where you can speak your mind and be totally original as you learn to trust your imagination. Whether you write to discover what you are thinking about or to get something off your chest, whether what you write takes you by surprise or expresses long held beliefs, you are welcome here. You, the creator, can equip your characters to think and behave in familiar or unfamiliar ways, whether they come from your imagination, or were part of an event or place that you remember. We invite you to submit pieces to be read aloud and discussed. This process will enhance our pleasure and help us learn. Our group is founded on the premise that everyone has a spark of creativity that puts us in touch with ourselves and with our ways of understanding and grasping our complex world. New and experienced writers are invited to participate.

“The group was inclusive from the first class. All the participants were welcoming and interested in others’ contributions.”
— Paul Hurder, OLLI Member
NEW How the South Won the Civil War
HISTORY & GOVERNMENT

Coordinators: Gene Gunsberg, Diane Valencia
Wednesday, 9:45–11:45 a.m.

Heather Cox Richardson argues in her provocative work, How The South Won The Civil War, that the North's blood-soaked victory ending slavery and giving the country a “new birth of freedom” was ephemeral. The system that sustained the defeated South moved westward and established a foothold. This gave rise to a new birth of white male oligarchy, regardless of 13th, 14th and 15th Amendment guarantees. Richardson traces the story of the American paradox: The competing claims of equality and subordination woven into the nation's fabric and identity. At the nation's founding, this paradox was represented by the Eastern “yeoman farmer.” Post-Civil War, that mantle was assumed by the Western cowboy. In the 20th century, “Movement Conservatives,” led by westerners Barry Goldwater, Richard Nixon, and Ronald Reagan claimed to embody the cowboy's individualism and worked with Dixiecrats to embrace the ideology of the Confederacy. Debunking the myth that the Civil War released the nation from the grip of oligarchy — expunging the sins of the Founding — we will examine, discuss, argue, and debate how the Old South not only survived in the West, but thrived into the 21st Century. We will read How the South Won the Civil War: Oligarchy, Democracy and the Continuing Fight for the Soul of America by Heather Cox Richardson (Oxford University Press, 2020).

NEW The American Political Tradition
HISTORY & GOVERNMENT

Coordinators: Richard Krantz, Vince McBrien
Wednesday, 9:45–11:45 a.m.

When asked what type of government he and the other founders had made, Benjamin Franklin replied, “a Republic if you can keep it.” Richard Hofstadter’s The American Political Tradition and the Men Who Made It (Vintage Books, 1989) is a portrayal, through a series of essays, of the men who made the tradition and kept the Republic. It is in the portrayal of these men that Hofstadter excels as a historian. We see these men as mortal men, people with hang-ups, anxieties, and mixed motivations struggling to find the right path, as they saw it, on which to steer the nation's course. Although the book was written in 1948, Hofstadter’s main themes are still relevant to today's political climate. Join us for some lively discussion about the American Political Tradition, what it has been, and what it may become. Note: Due to the length of the book, selected essays will be chosen for discussion. The reading load is approximately 80–100 pages per week.

Theoretical Foundations of Classical Mechanics

Coordinators: Art Goldman, Dick DuFour, John Donahue
Saturday, 9:45 a.m. to 12:45 p.m.

During the 18th and 19th centuries there was an enormous renaissance in understanding the physical science of how the familiar world around us works. We now call that “Classical Mechanics,” which refers to physics as it was understood before the advent of quantum mechanics. Unlike other popularizations of physics that shy away, this group utilizes mathematics to develop the theories and to explain and apply the principles. Our studies are based on an online video lecture series “Classical Mechanics,” originally given by world-renowned physicist Leonard Susskind. This group began its studies in the spring 2021 semester; our viewing and discussion of the remaining lectures of the video series will be concluded during the summer semester. Participation in the spring study group or familiarity with the subject is recommended. This group welcomes all members, regardless of background, who are prepared to actively participate in a unique, intellectually challenging peer learning experience. Familiarity with college-level calculus is recommended.

Creative Writing Workshop

Coordinators: Art Altman, Bob Jenkins
Wednesday, 9:45–11:45 a.m.

This study group workshop is for OLLI members who love words and is designed for the improvement and practice of creative writing skills across the various genres: poetry, creative nonfiction, essay, memoir, and fiction. Participants present their work to the study group for response, encouragement, critique, and suggestions. Revisions and resubmissions are encouraged. Longer works can be submitted in segments. This workshop will give study group members the creative outlet they want, while giving them an opportunity to produce a finished piece of writing of which they can be proud.

NEW History of the Filibuster

HISTORY & GOVERNMENT

Coordinators: Bill Lipsman, Gail Bartlett
Thursday, 9:45–11:45 a.m.

Most Americans see Congress as almost completely dysfunctional in the 21st Century. While legislation can eventually pass the House of Representatives, it usually dies in the Senate as a result of arcane procedural rules and the mastery of those rules by the Majority Party Leader. We will study the history of this rule by reading the very recent book by Adam Jentleson, Kill Switch: The Rise of the Modern Senate and the Crippling of American Democracy (Liveright Publishing Corporation, 2021), available in hardback and Kindle. Jentleson, former Deputy Chief of Staff to former Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, traces the history of the filibuster rule from its origins during John Calhoun’s Vice-Presidency to today. The latest act in modifying this rule may possibly occur before our study group begins, but understanding the background to the change will still be important for our understanding of the contemporary Senate.

NEW A River Runs Through It and Other Stories

LITERATURE

Coordinators: Martha Bills, Joe Hinkel
Thursday, 9:45–11:45 a.m.

In retirement, Norman Maclean, the self-described woodsman, scholar, teacher, and storyteller, wrote stories about his beloved Western Montana at the request of his children. Maclean was hardly unfamiliar with writing, having spent over 40 years teaching literature at the University of Chicago. His first book, A River Runs Through It and Other Stories, is “as beautiful as anything in Thoreau or Hemingway” according to the Chicago Tribune. The New York Times says it “rings out of a rich American tradition that includes Mark Twain...and Nelson Algren.” Not bad for a retired man writing for the first time. Maclean's stories arise from his youth in the beautiful, not fully settled, world of Western Montana. A River Runs Through It includes so much to be discussed. We will cover the three stories in the book and also compare the book to the movie of the same name. Join us in what will be a fascinating discussion.

NEW A Brief History of Human Evolution

SCIENCE, TECHNOLOGY, MEDICINE, AND HEALTH

Coordinators: Jerry Bernstein, John Drodo
Thursday, 9:45–11:45 a.m.

“Our ancestors first lived in trees, then came down to explore the ground. Then they became bipeds and explored the world — from there the possibilities were endless.” So begins the story of that strange animal hominid sapiens, as told in our text, A Pocket History of Human Evolution: How We Became Sapiens by Silvana Condemi and Francois Savaer (The Experiment, 2019). Perhaps your knowledge of human evolution ends after the discovery of “Lucy” in the 1970s, or maybe you have no idea what the term “hominid” refers to. This study group will fill in many fascinating details in the long story of those ape-like creatures which began atop African trees. Exploring first the journey from a common great-ape ancestor to Lucy, and then from Lucy to Homo Sapiens, our authors summarize elegantly and authoritatively a flood of new information on human evolution. Furthermore, they do it in a mere 130 pages. The coordinators will add further readings to supplement the text. Please join us in pursuing this great scientific detective story.

NEW The City Symphony

CREATIVE ARTS

Coordinators: Howard Aronson, Susan Leis

Thursday, 1:15–3:15 p.m.

The City Symphony, a silent film genre restricted almost completely to the 1920s, can be viewed as a cross between the documentary and the travelogue, though in fact it resembles neither. Such films can be poetic or political, often avant garde and experimental. Common to almost all of them is the lack of stars, characters, and plot. Often portraying daily life in a major metropolis, these films freeze moments in the past that otherwise we could not revisit. In this study group we will discuss some of the best of these city symphonies: Walter Ruttmann’s Berlin: Symphony of a Great City (1927); Dziga Vertov’s film of major urban centers in Soviet Ukraine, Man with a Movie Camera (1929), named by the British Film Institute as the 8th best movie of all time; and Robert Siodmak and Edgar G. Ulmer’s People on Sunday (Screenplay by Billy Wilder, 1930), which also takes place in Berlin. We will also discuss six shorter films: Manhatta (New York), Nothing But Time (Paris), Skyscraper Symphony (New York), Rain (Amsterdam), Concerning Nice (Nice, France) and Hard Work on the River Douro (1931, Portugal). All of these are silent films and all are available on YouTube. Access to YouTube required.
NEW A Novel of 1746 and its Moral Conundrum

LITERATURE

Coordinators: Mary Jo Huck, Connie Karduck
Thursday, 1:15–3:15 p.m.

Golden Hill: A Novel of Old New York by Francis Spufford (Faber & Faber, 2016) is a fast-paced mystery and love story that keeps the moral conundrum of 1746 America “in its sights through breakneck chase scenes and dark nights of the soul” (The New Yorker). This first novel from British historian Francis Spufford is about a handsome young Londoner, Richard Smith, who arrives by boat to find Manhattan more of a small town than a metropolis. There are surprising contrasts with his beloved London — and he is cosmopolitan; the Manhattanites provincials. The book is fascinating and amusing historical fiction. New York is still a British colony following some of their traditions. There is also reference to the plight of Native Americans and enslaved Africans. Though the plantations are elsewhere, Manhattan is involved in a sugar trade of the south in which Manhattan as well as the farmers in the north benefit. Each week we will read a section of the book with study group members leading the discussion.

Science Times

SCIENCE, TECHNOLOGY, MEDICINE, AND HEALTH

Coordinators: Brenda Russell, Isaac Gadsden
Thursday, 1:15–3:15 p.m.

Do you want to know about the latest developments in science? Every week, for the last forty years, The New York Times has had an extensive section on Tuesday with news on scientific subjects. Topics cover a broad range of science and technology, as well as health and medicine. The articles make the reader sit up and take notice by calling attention to new, surprising, or underreported scientific developments. Members of the group will be asked to select, research, and lead the discussion. Articles come from a recent Tuesday Science Times or from elsewhere in The New York Times with topical scientific interest. Digital or print subscription to The New York Times is required. We learn and we laugh together. Join us for some great discussions.

FRIDAY

WWII Day by Day with The New York Times

HISTORY & GOVERNMENT

Coordinators: Michael Sehr, Michael Miller
Friday, 9:45–11:45 a.m.

By July 1941, World War II had been raging in Europe for almost two years and in Asia, years longer. In Europe, Germany's legions were racing across the Soviet Union, headed for Leningrad, Moscow, and all of the major cities of Ukraine. In Asia, Japan was considering whether to join in the attack on the U.S.S.R. rather than expand into all of South Asia. The battles in the year to come would determine who dominated in Europe, Africa, the Mediterranean, and Asia. In the United States, FDR's administration continued to support the world’s democracies while attempting to maintain neutrality. Life in the U.S. continued more or less as normal. Join us as we read and talk about war, politics, and culture in 1941. Each week, the discussion leaders will select 20–25 New York Times articles from corresponding weeks eighty years ago. The articles will include military, political, science, cultural, and economic news. We will use Canvas extensively, provide supplemental materials, and show videos. We recommend a subscription to the digital New York Times. We will use the TimesMachine feature included with the subscription.
